

Presenter Biographies

Applying Digital Tools for the Journey to Self-Reliance

October 2019

Mary Jane Parmentier

Clinical Associate Professor at Arizona State University

Directs the M.S. in Global Technology and Development (GTD) program in the School for the Future of Innovation in Society. The GTD program is an international development masters that highlights and examines the variable of technology, particularly emerging technologies, in the development process.

Mary Jane has developed many courses in international development and technology theory and policy.

Her regions of expertise are North Africa and Latin America, and she is proficient in French, Spanish and Moroccan Arabic.

Mary Jane's PhD is from the Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver, where she completed an emphasis in international development, and wrote her dissertation on religion and politics in North Africa.

Peace Corps Volunteer in Morocco 1986-1988.

Faheem Hussein

Clinical Assistant Professor at Arizona State University

Ph.D. and an M.S. degree in Engineering and Public Policy from Carnegie Mellon University.

Research interests include: Information and Communication Technology for Sustainable Development, Development for Displaced Populations, Women's Empowerment, Digital Afterlife, Social Media, and Digital Rights.

Faheem Hussain has also been involved as a Technology Policy Expert in various research projects with a number of United Nations organizations (e.g., UNDP, ITU, UN-APCICT), international development agencies (e.g., IDRC, DFID, Ford and Rockefeller Foundations), and international think tanks (e.g., Freedom House, LIRNEasia, Ideacorps).

Regions of expertise are South, South East, Central, and East Asia, Middle East, and Sub-Saharan Africa.